Last Night arrived a Dutch Mail with Letters of the 16th ult. O. S. from Vienna, which fay the Imperial Court has received Letters from Constantinople, that not only confirm the Death of Prince Ragotski, but the Banishment of the Bashaw Count de Bonneval to a Castle in Asia, where he is strictly guarded.

At Paris they have a remarkable Letter written from Baltia the 6th of January O. S. of which the following is an Extract.

Our Reinforcement of 4 Battalions, which arrived the 28th of December O. S. in the Gulph of St. Fiorenzo, on the Corfican Coaft, suffered cruelly by the Storm. Some of the Transports which were separated from the others by the Wind, were drove upon the Coasts of Tuscany. Others were drove ashore upon the Coasts of Cossica. A Long Boat was cast away, in which a Captain, a Lieu-tenant, a Clerk, a Drummer, and 6 Mariners were firiving to get ashore. 'Twas with great Difficulty that the Convoy got together again. One of the Veffels jolt entering into the Gulph, was thrown upon the Strand some Leagues from this Place, and 200 Men that were on board, creeping a long the Shore in hopes of getting to St. Fiorenzo, were met by a great Number of Rebels, who threaten'd to kill every one of them if they made Refiffance; and being but poorly arm'd, and the Number of the Corficans increasing every Moment, they were obliged to furrender to them; their affuring them that they were Frenchmen, and that they came as their Friends, fignified nothing, for they were ftripp'd and plunder'd of all they had. M. . Villemur, a Lieutenant Colonel, who was fent to reclaim them by the Count de Boissieux, found them almost naked, and in a most wretched Plight that could be; and as fuch, the Corficans delivered them to him, but did not reftore so much as a Rag of what they had robbed them of. This has perfectly enraged the Count de Boisseux against these Rebels, and as foon as the Snows are melted, he defigns to march against them: And our Soldiers are for exasperated, that we have Reason to think they will attack the Corsicans with the utmost Fury. As they have abused our Lenity towards them, and as there feems to be no way left to reduce them but by open Force, M. Boiffieux has made a Beginning by the Arrest of the Canon Orticoni, and Doctor Giafferi, who are the two Deputies that the Rebels fent to Ballia, and they are both confin'd in the Fortress."
